

Anna Platt

Anna Platt is a Swedish/American screenwriter with experience spanning many genres, including thriller, comedy, and drama.

Platt grew up in Los Angeles and moved to Sweden when she was eight years old. She is a graduate of Dublin's Gaiety School of Acting and initially tried her hand at writing drama while attending the School of Arts Biskops Arnö. She later returned to Biskops Arnö as a teacher and was the head of the screenwriting department for five years. Platt is also the author of two critically acclaimed novels, her latest being nominated for the prestigious Book of the Year Award in Sweden, 2023.

Platt debuted with the original feature film Love Deluxe, a romantic comedy, in 2014. She is one of the writers of The Congregation, which premiered in 2021 to great acclaim.

Her recent work also includes The Truth Will Out 2 (2021), A Class Apart (2021), Huss (2021) and Partisan (2020), which won the Best Series Award at Cannes International Series Festival.

2022 saw the premiere of Beck 45: 58 Minutes, the hair-raising hostage drama of which Platt is the writer. Her latest premiere is the Netflix thriller series A Nearly Normal Family (2023), penned together with Hans Jörlind. The series achieved remarkable international success on Netflix and is based on the bestselling novel of the same name by Mattias Edvardsson.

Currently, Platt is working on a new novel, as well as several TV projects including a major international project soon to be made official.
